SALE of the Crab Orchard distillery, one of the oldest in the State, has been consummated and the property passes into the hands of the Yates-Smith Company, a new firm, which has just entered the whisky market in Kentucky says the Courier Journal. The property was purchased from Julius Kessler, of Chicago. Preliminary arrangements for the sale were made last spring, when the new company occupied the plant at Crab Orchard and operated, it long enough to manufacture a spring crop. The Crab Orchard distillery was built in 1867 and was originally owned by James Levi &. Brother, of Cincinnati. While not large, the distillery was used for the purpose of manufacturing a special brand of liquor, which had an extensive sale for several years. Less than 10 years ago the plant was CONTINUED UNTIL To-DAY. - The ex- purchased by the Kentucky Distilleries amining trial of James Carter, Richard and Warehouse Company, and was Kriger some four weeks ago, was called years it has been used only periodically.
